Turkey and Greece offer a profusion of delights to be had from their islands, most of them only accessible by boat. A truly seductive gulet destination.

Day 1

- Marmaris

Day 1: Marmaris - Kardiga Bay Embark in Marmaris and set sail for Kadirga Bay, a beautiful bay with clear blue waters, perfect for snorkeling and swimming. Later in the day, settle down to read a book or take a nap in the gentle afternoon sun as your yacht makes its way further down the coast and into the landlocked harbour of Bozukkale. Anchor beneath the walls of an ancient citadel and enjoy dinner ashore in a rustic bayside setting, or onboard, under the stars.

Day 2

- Rhodes

Day 2: Rhodes Early morning departure for Rhodes. Arrive into the Colonna harbour, Rhodes, just prior to breakfast. The walls of the medieval Crusader are visible from the harbour and will beckon all to visit the “old town” for shopping or sightseeing. One of the highlights of any visit to Rhodes’ old town is a quiet walk down the “Avenue of the Knights,” a cobblestone street that has been traversed since the time of the Crusaders. If you wish to do a thorough exploration of Rhodes’ old city, it is recommended that you tour in the company of an English-speaking guide, a local who has a wealth of information to share. Dine ashore in a colorful Greek taverna, then set out to see the town of Rhodes by night.

Day 3

- Symi

Day 3: Symi A late afternoon approach is one of the most beautiful sights imaginable. Cross from Rhodes to the island of Symi and anchor in one of the many beautiful and remote bays on the eastern side of the island, perhaps Aghios Georghios Dhysalonas Bay. On the late afternoon, move on around going to Symi harbour. Once the yacht is moored on the town quay, go ashore to take the sights and sounds of this delightful small harbour. Symi Harbour's waterfront is adorned with 19th-century neo-Classical buildings, and many fine examples of this type of architecture can be found nestled in the folds of hills surrounding the port. It goes without saying that this is a wonderful place for a memorable night out in Greece!

Day 4

- Datca

Day 4: Datca - Palamut Buku Re-entering Turkey in the port of Datça, just a short sail from Symi, it is possible to take an overland tour to “The Olive Farm” and visit “Old Datca” with its winding cobblestone streets and quaint stone houses. Perhaps enjoy some freshly made lemonade in one of the shady cafes before returning to the harbour. In the afternoon, sail down to the ancient harbour of Knidos for some excellent sightseeing amongst the magnificent ruins of this most famous of ancient cities. Overnight in a nearby bay, perhaps “Palamut Buku,” with dinner ashore or onboard.

Day 5

- Bozburun

Day 5: Bozburun - Bozukkale - Serce Sail back east to Bozburun to visit a Turkish coastal town, which is home to some very friendly folk with rural backgrounds. Bozburun was once an important sponge-fishing centre, but is now better known as a centre for boat building. There is a small selection of shops here and some small cafes and restaurants. Return to Bozukkale for a chance to see the ruins of ancient Loryma, and continue to Serce, the overnight stop and site of one of the most important underwater excavations ever carried out: the excavation of the “Glass Wreck” – the artifacts recovered during this work are now displayed in the Bodrum Museum of Underwater Archaeology.

Day 6

- Marmaris

Day 6: Ekincik Bay Cross to Ekincik Bay in the morning and spend a day at leisure in these most beautiful bays, where thick pine forest tumbles down steep slopes to the water's edge, and time seems to slow right down. Go ashore to "My Marina Restaurant" before sunset and have a meal overlooking the waters of the Mediterranean. It is a unique setting, and the view is magnificent!

Day 7

- Marmaris

Day 7: Caunos - Dalyan Board a small riverboat for a tour of ancient Caunos and Dalyan. The riverboat travels at a leisurely pace, making its way inland along the reed-lined channels of the Dalyan River delta. As the area is under environmental protection, you will likely see various wildlife, including turtles, herons, and kingfishers. Afterward, board the riverboat again for the short ride upriver to Dalyan town. Mid-journey, the boat passes beneath some impressive Lycian rock tombs. Return to the yacht in Ekincik and set sail for Kumlu Buku. Overnight in Kumlu Buku, with dinner, either ashore at the Kumlu Buku Yacht Club or onboard your yacht

Day 8

- Marmaris

Day 8: Marmaris Going back to Marmaris in the morning for disembarkation.
